

LOOKING FOR A RETIREMENT RESIDENCE HERE'S THE CHECKLIST

Consider the following items when looking for a retirement residence for your loved one's

- Keep an eye out and see how the staff communicates with the residents, are they smiling?
- Make sure to collect brochures, news letters and calendars so you can compare services offered.
- See how knowledgeable the staff is on what amenities are offered and what makes that facility stand out compared to others.
- Inquire about transportation, social activities and any services offered.
- Inquire about extra costs that may be associated with living in the residence.
- Explore with the Staff what kind of community and lifestyle programs are provided.
- Make sure to view the entire residence and check its cleanliness and accessibility to ensure it address the needs of your loved ones.
- Review the menu, sitting times, the variety of menu options, how often the menu is changed. Ask how they address any special needs and costs that may be attributed to that.
- Talk to the the people that live there, get their opinion and ask what they like about the residence.
